STUDIES

Course information

All programs of study at Leuphana University have been modularized in order to support international student mobility and to allow credit transfer. A module is defined as a unit that comprises a set of courses on a given topic including a final exam. The module handbook is accessible at: <https://mystudy.leuphana.de/vvz/show>
Log in as guest. Select a program of study. Click for module description.

Module selection

Guidelines for module selection can be found at: <https://www.leuphana.de/en/institutions/international-center/coming-to-leuphana/exchange/module-selection.html>
Exchange students are allowed to take up to 50% modules from other subject areas respecting their study level (bachelor/master). The module selection will be finalized during the orientation program upon consultation with the academic advisor at Leuphana University. However, this does not guarantee a place in a specific course as we have limited places in some study programs (e.g. Psychology, Digital Media). Priority is given to students majoring in their field according to the partner universities cooperation agreement.

Semester workload

The standard semester workload comprises 30 ECTS credits.
A standard module at Leuphana University comprises 5 ECTS credits.
